Scamwatch radar alert

'Tis the season for online shopping scams

Australians have already lost more money to online shopping scams in 2019 than in the entire previous year, and Scamwatch is warning people to be cautious of online shopping scams in the lead up to the holiday season.

So far in 2019, reported losses from online shopping scams are over $4 million, well in excess of the 2018 total figure of $3.28 million.

"Scammers often try to take advantage of people doing their Christmas shopping including in the upcoming Black Friday and Cyber Monday sales," ACCC Deputy Chair Delia Rickard said.

"Reported losses have tripled over the last three years and it is concerning that losses from this year are already so high."

Watch out for these common online shopping scams:

- Fake websites/stores: scammers will set up fake online stores, on websites or social media, which can look like genuine online retailers. Many of these offer luxury items at very low prices but you may receive a fake item or nothing at all.
- Fake sellers: scammers may pose as genuine sellers on classifieds websites. The scammer may claim they are travelling and an agent will deliver the goods once you have paid, but you won't receive the goods and will be unable to contact the seller.

"Some of the most commonly reported products that scammers are attempting to sell this year are shoes, smartphones and tickets to events, with losses from these items so far exceeding half a million dollars," Ms Rickard said.

"Warning signs for online shopping scams include extremely low advertised prices and requests to pay through direct bank transfer or cryptocurrency."

"We encourage everyone to do their research before making an online purchase and if purchasing expensive goods, not to make payment until they have inspected the product."

Ms Rickard added that spreading scam warnings with loved ones over the holiday period can help protect vulnerable consumers.

"Many people enjoy the convenience of online shopping but it is important to remember that there can be risks involved."

"If you do think you have been scammed, contact your bank as soon as possible," Ms Rickard said.

Further information about scams is available at www.scamwatch.gov.au. People can also follow @scamwatch_gov on Twitter.

Urgent recall: WA's Consumer Protection warns more than 6,600 Samsung top loader washing machines could catch fire

Authorities have warned there are thousands of ticking time bombs scattered throughout WA.

Consumer Protection has issued a recall on more than 6,600 "dangerous" Samsung top loader washing machines manufactured between 2010 and 2013.

The machines have been recalled because they pose a serious risk of going up in flames.

An internal fault has allowed condensation to penetrate an electrical connector and, in some cases, sparking fires.

The affected models are: SW75V9WIP; SW65V9WIP; SW70SPWIP; SW80SPWIP; WA85GWGIP and WA85GWWIP.

One of the recalled models caught fire in the laundry of an Armadale property last Tuesday night, with fire fighters called in to deal with the blaze.

No one was hurt but the incident prompted Consumer Protection Penny Lipscombe to say the washing machines should be disconnected from the power supply and not used again.

"Affected consumers should remove the recalled machine from their homes as a top priority and seek a refund from the retailer who sold it," she said.

"As this is regarded as a major fault, repair is not an option so consumers should get their money back and arrange to have the recalled washing machines collected by the supplier who will dispose of them."

She said the machines should not be re-sold or placed on verges for bulk rubbish collections.

Anyone having issues securing a refund from their retailer or having the units collected can contact Consumer Protection on 1300 30 40 54 or email consumer@dmirs.wa.gov.au
